There is no better way to learn what it's like to be a Northwest College student than experiencing it firsthand. Join us Friday, Nov. 8, for our annual Preview Day event and get a real feel for what the Northwest campus culture is all about. ## Share your memories

Northwest College's strength lies in individualized attention and knowing our students and their learning needs outside of the classroom – shared common spaces where they can network, study and socialize with classmates and with faculty. The current student center is no longer working to meet these goals. While a mainstay of memories for 53 years, we can no longer bandage together the structural deficiencies of this aging facility.

As we plan for the future with a new building in the same location, we invite you to share your stories and memories of the DeWitt Student Center. Post messages and photos Here.

Alumni embracing challenges

It takes courage to venture into the unknown, but Northwest College alumnus Quentin McHoes is no stranger to embracing challenge. After graduating from NWC in 2018, he transferred to George Washington University—a private institution in DC with more than 25,000 students. As an active member of campus and president of four student organizations during his time at NWC, McHoes remains driven by passion in DC and is an integral part of the student community, serving on the Residence Hall Association and GW Class Council.
